Aspiring designers often use Photoshop at a young age to create their work and then transfer it to the web to post, share, and promote their work online. On the more advanced side of the spectrum, Photoshop boasts a substantial feature set, as well as a wide community of users and plug-ins that extend its capabilities well beyond those of other, more basic programs. Photoshop continues to evolve and is one of the most popular tools used on websites. Currently, Photoshop is the most widely used image editing tool for web designers. You can use Photoshop to create logos, banners, and other graphic design projects. What Photoshop Features Does It Have? There are a number of advanced features available in Photoshop that help you create dynamic and appealing web graphics. Let's break them down: Panels and Layouts Perhaps the most useful feature of Photoshop are its panels that help organize your work, including layers, selections, brushes, and more. They help you better understand the concept of layers. Photoshop has a handful of different panel options to help you work faster and more efficiently. It gives you easy access to tools such as color pickers, the Brush tool, the Healing Brush, the Content-Aware Move tool, the Magic Wand, the eraser tool, and the type tool. Layers Photoshop is a raster-based program that enables users to create layers. You create a layer by adding it to your image. Layers help you work with compositions while maintaining layer transparency for ease of editing. They allow you to work on your photos with various filters and textures. Image-editing tasks, such as healing up a blemish, smoothing an area that's uneven, or adding extra details to an image, are made easier by using layers. Layers allow you to group and treat multiple images as one file. The Levels Panel The Levels panel enables you to adjust contrast and brightness in an image. You control the adjustment in a non-destructive way. The Levels panel is useful for fine-tuning images, because it allows you to quickly find and adjust problematic areas. Use the Live view to check how the adjustment will look before you make it permanent. Use the Undo feature to reverse it. The Hue/Saturation panel The Hue/Saturation panel gives you quick access to the controls for changing the colors in an image

The latest Jets rumors: QB Josh McCown is expected to be the Jets' starting quarterback, but he faces competition from Christian Hackenberg, Bryce Petty and Teddy Bridgewater, according to Mike Florio of Pro Football Talk. Florio added that McCown could also end up being the backup to whichever quarterback eventually wins the job. McCown, 31, is signed through 2019 but is listed as a game-manager who would be best suited as a backup with potential to be the starter if needed. "He's a nice guy, pretty intelligent," coach Todd Bowles said of McCown, according to Florio. "He's the quarterback of the future. That's my goal for all the guys out there." McCown has made 59 regular season starts and has thrown for 9,022 yards with 36 TDs and 37 interceptions with an 81.2 passer rating. He spent three years with the Bears from 2011-13. The Jets signed McCown to a one-year deal worth $5 million and $6 million, with $3.5 million guaranteed, in March. He was originally drafted by the Bears in the third round in 2008. McCown signed with the Jets on March 16 after he decided to take a pay cut from his $17 million, three-year, $36 million deal with the Bears. McCown had a career-high 94.8 passer rating in 2017, throwing 17 TDs and just three interceptions in 12 starts as a starter for the first time since 2015. He spent his first four seasons with the Bears (2011-14) and started 24 games, throwing for 8,577 yards and 59 TDs, with 37 interceptions and a 91.7 passer rating. McCown's deal for 2018 went unsigned until May 26, when the Jets were among the teams to offer him a one-year, $5 million deal.

Free Bikram Yoga If you're a constant New Yorker, being a little under-the-weather still in the off-season and suffering from sore muscles, a good way to get healthy is to head over to the Bikram Yoga studio on the Upper East Side. Sessions start at $20 and about 14 different classes are offered. In case you haven't heard of Bikram Yoga, it's a very hot yoga style that works your muscles as opposed to just stretching them. In the Bikram style of yoga, a room filled with about 40 degrees and set at 65% humidity is provided. It's impossible to tell if you are actually breathing because of the temperature and humidity. If you're looking to keep yourself in shape in the off-season, you could always try out one of these free workouts. If a workout class doesn't keep you in shape like yoga, you could try out one of these free workouts. If you want to avoid paying to buy a membership or have to spend hours in class with a mediocre teacher at a low-end studio that could lead to injury, you could try out a free workout from one of these organizations. Free Daily Community Yoga Get fit at your local community space. Instead of paying for expensive gym memberships, these free community gym classes will give you enough time to exercise at your own pace and keep you in shape.
