It was released on the Microsoft Windows platform on 30 October 2008, on the Xbox Live Arcade service on 26 February 2012, and on PlayStation Network on 24 October 2012. The game is available in Europe, Australia, Japan and North America. The PC version was released on Windows-compatible personal computers via Steam on 13 October 2009. This was followed by the Mac release on Mac App Store on 17 November 2010. As of December 2015 the game has amassed sales of over 1,000,000 units, and received generally favorable reviews from critics.

Gameplay The game has three different modes: an Arcade Mode, Practice Mode, and a Multiplayer Mode. Arcade Mode The game has two game modes in Arcade Mode: Single Player and Local Multiplayer. Single Player is played alone, with the player taking control of three sectors of a Nova Class space cruiser. Practice Mode and local multiplayer are the same as single player, but the player's opponents are replaced by AI controlled starfighters. A player can toggle between playing the game against AI and human AI players in the later stages of the game. The player must also choose the difficulty setting for each AI starfighter, and the difficulty setting chosen influences the type of starfighter the AI starfighter will be. The four difficulty settings are: Easy: The fighter is the least experienced pilot that the game can simulate. Moderate: The fighter is no more experienced than the difficulty level 2 player, but the difficulty level 2 player has superior AI. Hard: The player's character has typically achieved a rank of at least 2 of the four ranks available, with the AI having usually achieved rank 4, and with skills in specialist maneuvers. Legendary: The player is highly experienced, and has all levels of the four ranks up to or including the rank of Legendary. Gameplay objectives in the game involve navigating the player's space ship and defending it from incoming enemy fire. An object can only be deleted or destroyed if it gets hit at least once with a cannon, beam weapon, or tractor beam. However, some objects are considered "not killable", such as asteroids and the player's own ships. One may also have to obtain or destroy powerups before they may be used against an opponent. These objects can be obtained in the Practice Mode of single player and in local multiplayer. Other objects are acquired during the game, some are obtained in the Load Plasmodium falciparum: modulation of erythrocyte permeability and metabolism by an activator of protein kinase C. Highly purified preparations of the active phospholipase C of P. falciparum stimulate incorporation of  $^{32}\text{P}$  into a 55-kDa phosphoprotein of bovine erythrocyte membrane. This effect is not dependent on changes in intracellular ion contents or the presence of  $\text{Ca}^{2+}$  in the cytosol. The phosphorylation is also enhanced by the addition of P. falciparum phosphatidylcholine-specific phospholipase C, suggesting the presence of specific receptor(s) for these enzymes on the surface of the erythrocyte membrane.

Q: Is there any relation between the compact set  $K_2 = \mathbb{N} \setminus \{1\}$  and the compact set  $K_1 = \mathbb{R} \setminus \{0\}$ ? Let  $K$  be a compact set. Is there any relation between  $K$  and the compact set  $K' = \mathbb{R} \setminus \{0\}$ ? By the closure of  $K$ , we have  $K = \text{bigcap}_{U \text{ text{ is an open neighborhood of } K} U$ . Since  $0 \in K$ , let  $U = K$  and  $\overline{U} = K$ . Then,  $K \subset K'$ . And for  $0 \notin K$ , let  $U = \mathbb{R} \setminus \{0\}$
