I can't believe this game is still in existence... No, still in development: I found that on Google a bit ago: I saw that Indie Cap released a video game called "Blue Whale" on February the 20th 2017. Exact quote from Indie Cap: An Indie Game Developer, Blue Whale Games, has released a new game called Blue Whale on Steam on February 20th 2017. This game is an indie-style video game focusing on the existential experience of being trapped inside a building and having no way out. The title in question is "Blue Whale", and the game is designed to be fun and contemplative at the same time. The game's release date is 18th Jan 2016: Monday, January 21, 2010 Life and Soul Rona called me while I was in the office yesterday. I came home and within 5 min of getting out of my car, she calls me again. I was happy to hear from her, she has not been calling me much lately. She gave me a good lunch, we talked about life, schools, work. I told her I have been frustrated by the violence in the schools. She said she used to be one of those lazy kids who just wanted to sleep in, but now she can't go back to sleep because she is so anxious to get up and go to school. I told her, you have to find a balance, your body and mind need rest. I then asked her, how is your body? Rona: "It's like it's so comfortable and you are just lying there, but you are so anxious to get up and go to class." Me: "That is good, you are not a lazy kid. That is the most important thing for you." Rona: "I know it is."

Aliens of Charted Space is a science-fiction roleplaying game set in a far-future of Charted Space, a galaxy of terraformed planets controlled by the Archaean-Inhabited Outposts of the Contacted Races. Aliens of Charted Space continues the story of the original, successful home-brew campaign set in the same universe. The setting includes 144 characters, along with hundreds of creatures and monsters. It includes rules for creating Travellers from each of these alien races, as well as for adding High Guard equipment and vehicles to the game. Aliens of Charted Space is a replayable science-fiction campaign, in which the player characters return to archaeology to discover that the history of Charted Space is gradually changing. The Contacted Races have colonized the galaxy in the last century, but the eons-old ancient races have yet to leave their haunted outposts. Key Features: An online store with specialized store items. Many products are also available on Steam Workshop. A player handbook with a free pdf guide available to print. Extensive online help. One-page rulebook with game-ready character creation. 144-page character sheet. A large variety of creatures and monsters from across the galaxy. Over a thousand pages of documentation from the original campaign. Aliens of Charted Space is the sequel to the original successful, one-human-ship-and-crew post-apocalyptic setting of the same name. In that campaign, player characters are recruited to an archaeology expedition to recover the shipwreck of an ancient and advanced alien vessel. They uncover a treasure-trove of alien technology and encounter a number of alien races, including the Vilani Imperium. I recommend high-fantasy DMing of the rules, with some easy-RPG elements, for each episode. Kickstarter The Aliens of Charted Space Campaign An Alien-a-week campaign with each alien episode taking place on a different planet. Each episode contains three linked scenarios, each with its own plot. The campaign consists of 17 episodes. The campaign is compatible with both the original high-fantasy campaign, featuring races such as Humans, Primaris Marines, Vilani, Guardians and the Lost Eye Tribe, and the new version set in an expanded universe of Charted Space, with races such as Solomani, Hive Federation, High Guard and the many other alien races of Charted Space. Gravity Control is a fast paced, high intensity, one touch arcade game similar to the arcade game "Boot Stompers". And who doesn't love that these days. For those of you who don't know the original "Boot Stompers" is one of those simple games that you have to use the one touch joystick to dodge obstacles. The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat will come fast and furious in this tilting arcade game. Any input will send your ship hurdling through the air. You play the role of an astronaut who has crash landed on a planet. Your goal is to advance through the many levels, dodging and destroying asteroids, to reach the Mothership which you will use to return home safely. What's the catch? Gravity Control is a challenging game that requires you to destroy the entire line of enemies to advance and reach the Mothership. There is no option to pause the game and continue afterwards. Each time you defeat an asteroid, the next one will be smaller and faster. You must destroy them all before they crush you. Each of the seven original tracks are available separately on both Google Play and the App Store. You can also purchase the complete Gravity Control Soundtrack from Please Rate and Leave your comments.(CNN) Afghan national security forces resumed their search operations in Kunduz province following clashes between US-led coalition forces and Taliban fighters in Afghanistan's northern city on Saturday morning. The Associated Press on Saturday quoted Afghan officials as saying two Afghan soldiers had been killed and several more wounded during ongoing fighting. The officials, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media, said the two killed were members of the Afghan Local Police who were guarding a local government center when the fighting took place. This is the second time this week that Afghan national security forces had clashed with the Taliban. An Afghan soldier and police commander were killed in clashes with Taliban fighters over the past 24 hours, government spokesman Dawlat Waziri said. The Taliban in a statement on Saturday said the Afghan security forces launched an operation in the Khwaja Kuh district of the northern province on Saturday morning that resulted in clashes. It claimed the soldiers and police retreated. Pajhwok Afghan News, citing a local official, said the government troops are now in control of the area. The AP said
