What's new:

Coming Soon! I have some crazy news for you today... It's not about another Bush Class Locomotive... You may be familiar with my work on the Southern Pacific SD45T2-4 issues with the Craig McJohn 4 model and the Narrow Gauge Bingham version. But the good news is in Scotland a new add-on for Australian and New Zealand scenery is currently being built. It's the Southern Pacific SD45T2-2 that is a '2' not a '4'. But that's not all... About a week ago a strange thing happened. I received a message on twitter from RobJohnW pointing me to a blog entry from Skikitsubar. The blog post was about a model of that locomotive that was made for them by a customer. The model has drawn his attention and he knew I had a Bush Class Locomotive so he asked if they could get the model and I said absolutely. So they did. They got it and asked what do you want to play with it? So I got it all together and some time ago was looking through Skikitsubar's information on what to build and they have a good idea so I designed this one. I'm sure my content is not original as I know so many builders do great things with Bush Class SBL, but I'm quite proud of what I managed with the setup I used. Anyway, as you can see, it's built around the best bush class loco around - the February 1943 2-8-2 Class SD45T2-2 wooden loco. What's New in This Add-On? With such an awesome engine this loco is no longer just on the Southern Pacific RCTE /OneShell track. No no, we have a brand new Australian Scenery for you to play with. There's the Southern and Western powers of Australia to choose from and depending on which track system you have in your game I have loads of options to play with for the Australian Pacific Scenery. A very limited release of this 5th Australian Scenery will come from SBI and Hornby but for those set in the Pacific Rim it is now ready to be used with either To Australia and
