What's new in Unfolded : Camellia Tales - Digital Artbook:

- AlchemyMP Smile Game Builder was an easy to use game editor that allowed players to create and host their own games, and export them for others to play. The game engine had several built-in functions and was extremely easy to learn, but also had very advanced features that allowed modders to create their own tools and change almost every aspect of the game. Smile Builder was an easy to use interface for both users and modders, and had some decent support for the.NET Framework. Unfortunately, it got old quickly and recently ceased to exist. It was doomed from the start, however, because it was dependent on a flawed development model based entirely on commercial license fees, and was an early adopter of DRM in the form of SuperFish. It is a shame for the game and modding community that Smile Builder and it's engine were so "upstaged" by a single commercial copy protection scheme. FOR THE LOVE OF SMILE: An Interview with the Creator of Smile Builder ZZZ wrote: Hello, this is ZZZ, one of the creators of Smile Builder! What was it like for you to create Smile Builder? Smile Builder was fun and challenging because we were creating a new genre of game building software We lived in fear of getting the new version for free. We could have sold we could have given away(spit), or could have made a revolution.. but then again, we are on the internet and we had fun! The modding community in 1999 was very young and a lot smaller then it is now, but even so we knew that digital media would eventually rule the gaming industry, which is what's happened. We could have had a digital age version of shareware right away but we lacked a digital platform at the time and though there were half ass attempts in the past, they were all made by "big players" and just never went anywhere. Back then, we were basically freelancing and trying to figure out the whole "INTERNET CRAP" ZZZ: What's something that Smile Builder does that is useful to gamers? Something that the current games do NOT do well is create a customizable frame rate. We're creating a new genre of games and one of the main things that make it such a great time in gaming is the ability to do something that you've never been able to do before. Smile Builder has

End.....Physical activity and injury risk in the third trimester of pregnancy. The aim of this study was to determine whether women in their third trimester of pregnancy are less physically active during the last month than women earlier in the pregnancy. A prospective cohort study was performed in 103 fifth-trimester pregnant women. Physical activity was assessed by the Pregnancy Physical Activity Questionnaire (PPAQ) from week 20 of pregnancy until week 46, and with a text-message by day. The pregnant women were instructed by text-message to answer the PPAQ electronically on each day of measurement. During the observational period, a total of 521 women answered 62.1% (95% CI: 56.8-65.8) of the electronic questionnaires. There was a significantly decreased physical activity towards the end of pregnancy. Multivariate analyses showed that in addition to education, income and weekly non-pregnant work, the main reason for non-compliance was "hand, arm, and shoulder problem" (31% daily activity reduced in the last month). The cohort comprised low-active women at the onset of pregnancy. They were trained to a level that 80% of daily activity decreased towards the end of pregnancy. This train-down lasted up to 48 days post-partum. Sunrise (The Princess, Daisy and K.C. Morrow album) Sunrise is an album by the American jazz group The Princess, Daisy and KC Morrow recorded in 1962 and released on the Jazzland label. Reception The Allmusic review by Douglas Payne awarded the album 3½ stars stating "This trio recorded a handful of songs in 1962 with the same drummer (KC) and the same pianist (Dophine) that was the same name trio on their 1963 album, Thriller". Track listing "Sunrise" (Billy Eckstine, Don Redman) — 6:17 "Amen Sister" (Sebastian) — 8:45 "Blues for Greens" (Sebastian) — 7:10 "If I Had You" (Irving Mills, George Cohan) — 4:03 "Night
