(NGPL) Partner's Agreement contains hundreds of clauses that could lead to Northern Gateway (NGPL) being built with the help of our government, but we don't know what they are and what they contain. We know some of them, but we don't know them all. Since 1992, federal and provincial governments have authorized Enbridge to build the pipelines as part of their commitment to "significant" oil and gas projects, including the proposed Northern Gateway pipeline. In doing so, their government has been signing blank cheques to Enbridge without proper oversight of the company's environmental or social impacts, or of Enbridge's qualifications to build them. I have been so concerned by the lack of public information about the projects and by the company's lack of accountability to the public I introduced a private member's bill that required Enbridge to publicly list all its environmental, social and economic impacts and risks. At that time, Enbridge simply refused to disclose the risks, saying they were commercial in confidence, and neither the Parliamentary Review Board nor Justice Minister Jody Wilson-Raybould could force Enbridge to share them. In my second private member's bill on the subject, I asked the Auditor General to be the one to review how government guarantees its support for Enbridge
