One day, you are at the park looking at the birds with your mother. But, the moment you look up at a leaf on a tree that happens to be the colour of her ring, you lose your balance and fall. Eventually, the paramedics come and place you on a gurney and stretcher and whisk you to the ambulance. As the paramedics load you into the ambulance, you hear the door close. Suddenly, you look up at your mother through the back window and see the ambulance drive off. As she looks on, you reach for the door and you collapse again. The nurse reaches into her pocket, grabs a syringe and injects you with something. After that, you are gone. You are lying in a hospital bed. The nurse pokes her head in and makes you another drink of water. You look up at her and say, "I am thirsty." She smiles and nods her head, leaving the room. You wake up in a hospital room. You look around and see your mother standing by your bed. You roll over and look at her, confused. She nods and smiles at you, and you look back into her eyes, and finally understand what has happened. You reach for her hand and hold it, and you both smile and look out the window together. You have just completed your first hospital stay. You have been in the hospital for five days. Your mother is by your side the whole time. You are lying on your back and your mother is sitting in a chair by your bed. She gets up and walks around the bed. You see her smile at you and reach out to touch your arm. You sit up and look out the window. A few moments later, you see your mother stop by your bed. You look at her again, smile, and she strokes your hair. Your mother enters your room for the first time and stands by the bed. You look at her and she smiles. You wonder if it is really your mother or if you are dreaming. You reach out to touch her cheek and smile. As you continue to touch her, she gets down on her knees by your bed. You look at her still smiling, and reach out to touch her hand. She smiles and your eyes travel to her lips. You slowly move your hand to her mouth. She lays her head over yours. As your eyes meet hers, she brings her mouth to yours and you kiss her. This scene is replayed in your mind for days, months,
