Become a legendary hero as you blast your way through the vast dangers of the mysterious Kero Jungle, firing your way to adventure and endless glory. Play against classic characters from the Mega Drive/Genesis era in Mario's second adventure and discover a new block-busting take on the original Mega Drive Game. The character and environment of the Mega Drive games has been recreated for this game with classic Mega Drive sprites and environments based on the original Mega Drive Game used for the Mega Drive Collection Game released in Japan. The Monster and Character Unlockable System seen in the Mega Drive Collection games also comes to this game. Take control of the famed Mega-Maniac known as Mega Man. Earn and equip new weapons that compliment Mega Man's powerful fists as you take on eight spectacular bosses. Mega Man's power-ups are unique, power-enhancing ways to augment Mega Man's basic moves, giving him even greater abilities. Environments have been redesigned and updated to reflect the classic Mega Drive sprites used. Two friends will help Mega Man bring back his beloved robot girlfriend, X. Yoshiro and Bass depend on and respect Mega Man, so even if you are new to the classic series, you can still feel the fun. The original soundtrack for the game is also included for your listening pleasure! For a Mega-Man fan it's a must have. There is no way for me to deny this one. Just like with the Mega-Man Collection 2, it just appears that Capcom is on a roll with some of the Mega-Man related games that they have been releasing. Instead of having just 2 Mega-Man titles

Q: Globally unique id I like to autogenerate a guid based on the name of the product. I wan't to use the name - so there is no duplicate id once we have a customer name. I look at which i could use as a model, but its not quite right as it seems to be based on the current time rather than the product name. The good thing here is i am working within a compiled dll and don't have to change that every product release. I would like something that gives me an md5/sha1/sha2 look
