Hero Boy: The RPG Dreaming has been quite a bumpy ride for me in recent years. After the release of Horizon, I started on a new project. After being sidetracked by work and other projects, I was fortunate enough to sit down again after 2 years and work on it full time. This has been a very difficult project for me because I'm not the type of person who's good at balancing everything. This game is a fusion of two things I'm good at; making pixel art and making games. This will be my first time making a pixel art beat-em-up after years of making platformers and 2D beat-em-ups. There are currently 2 weeks left to support the game. Come and show your support. Main Features: Extensive Enemies: Contains over 200 unique enemies. Controls: You will primarily be fighting large groups of enemies. You will be able to block attacks, counter attack, charge up your special move, and hold down on the buttons to quickly execute special moves. Enemy Attack Patterns: The enemies will use a combination of melee, ranged, and area of effect attacks. Melee Attacks: The aim of the game is to defeat the enemies as quickly as possible so you don't get knocked down. If you are knocked down when you're hit with a melee attack, you can still block the attack if you hit the block button. Ranged Attacks: Like melee attacks, the aim of the game is to defeat the enemies as quickly as possible so you don't get knocked down. If you are knocked down when you are hit with a ranged attack, you can still counter attack and block the attack if you hit the block button. Area of Effect Attacks: Your special moves cover a large area around you in a tornado. The special moves have different kinds of effect to help you defeat enemies and damage your opponent. This is a mixture of melee, ranged, and area of effect attacks. Special Moves: You will be able to unlock a variety of special moves as you progress through the game. The special moves have different effects to help you defeat enemies and damage your opponent. Upgradable Weapons: You will be able to upgrade your weapons over time as you play the game. As you play, you can purchase weapons. The way your weapons are designed will change how the special move works and the way you attack enemies. Easy Article by: Ashley Long What is Grombrindal, and why is he different? This article aims to explain Grombrindal and how its sprites have changed from vanilla. Although the sprites, signs and props are subject to change in future patches, Grombrindal will not be affected. The changes to Grombrindal in Vanilla will be continued in this article, but where the new changes are included, only the old will be included below. Pre-war changes The important changes between pre-war maps and vanilla maps are as follows. Different sprite sizes Squadron Sprites no longer exist (they are sprite textures, not sprites) Troop Sprites in Vanilla have 2 types of infantry: heavy infantry (Troop Spawn), and light infantry (Soldier Spawn) In WarHammer, however all divisional non-Elite troops (non-Infantry spawning) have 1 sprite type with the same faction colours as in Vanilla, as well as colours that don't change from vanilla however. Combat Phase has been reworked completely - Vanilla restricts combat to within range of a melee attack. In WarHammer, instead of the melee update, players have the ability to fire cannons and crossbows from their headquarters unit without needing to be present at the target's headquarters location. Combat Update does not apply to units in melee distance without firing their primary weapons. Signs in Vanilla have 2 effects: No effects and Full effect The No Effect sign indicates that a unit is not in combat and further actions will not be taken due to being not affected. These units aren't sent to a battle per se, and do not participate in combat as defined in Vanilla, but are still considered "combat-ready" by Vanilla Combat Rules if they are within melee range of the enemy. The Full Effect sign indicates that a unit is in combat and has been affected by Vanilla Combat Rules. It will face, receive fires, etc. from all units in range without any hindrance. In WarHammer, new signs have been introduced that are similar to Vanilla, but both halves of the sign have the same effect, and have no need for a No Effect half. Changes to cost reduction In vanilla the primary, 1st, 2nd and Elite infantry (as well as small vehicles and star types) have the ability to reduce the cost of armour, guns, and either Plastik, Tough,
