Roblox is a website where users of the site create games, often using a program called Blox. The platform is similar to YouTube, in that the games on it are mostly user-created, and the environment of the site can be likened to a sandbox. Roblox was launched in 2006 by David Baszucki, CEO and creator of the site, and Erik Cassel. The pair had previously founded Video Vortex, an online video sharing site which they had sold to Yahoo! for $175 million in 2001. In addition to making games, Roblox also had an online interactive experience for kids called InWorld. After the foundation of InWorld, Cassel announced that he would step down as the CEO of Roblox. He was replaced by Baszucki. Roblox is one of the younger websites in terms of its longevity. Unlike most websites, Roblox does not have a set expiration date. Roblox is a free website with an indefinite life, although donations and subscription services are available. Most of the games on the site can be played by anyone. Initially, the site's games were mainly text-based, and its audience consisted primarily of kids. Many users were upset when a new player called "Spongebob Squarepants" was introduced in 2007, as this was perceived as targeting children's content at an adult platform. Roblox was initially criticised for what it saw as inappropriate games for children. All games with sexual themes were removed from Roblox's site in 2008. Since the beginning of the 2010s, the site's popularity has grown significantly. This is due to increased competition in the social media space, the inclusion of a mobile application for iOS and Android, and the appearance of multimedia options such as videos and 3D models. By 2014, Roblox had over 30 million users in over 190 countries. Amazon.com Inc. (AMZN) - Get Report posts a U.S. quarterly profit that beat Wall Street estimates for the second consecutive quarter on Thursday after a strong showing from Amazon Web Services. Amazon.com Inc. (AMZN) - Get Report shares rose 2.3% after the company posted net income of $1.45 billion, or $1.75 per share, for the three months ended March 31. That compares with a profit of $1.54 billion, or $1.76 a share, a year earlier. Revenue rose 20% to $
