Autodesk Products: Autodesk Alias 2017 X64.Q: how to crop a selenium image using cloud-object storage I am working on a project which retrieve some images from a website using selenium and put in cloud-object storage. After this, I want to upload a new image to the same website in the same location of the previous. In that case, the new image must not be the same type of previous. Do you know any way to do this? A: Make sure that you don't upload a new image over the previous image. You can use the pattern-filling part of the upload method of class Storage. Storage storage =

Storage.getInstance(storageName, constructorArgs); storage.create(mediaType, locator, patternFiller, true, true); The only change is in line 9. Because you may want to overwrite the previous image with a new one. You must set useCORS to false. location = storage.buildLocation(mediaType, locator, true, false); The mediaType is with extension '.tmp', so you may need to change it. You can use prepareMediaToUpload() to convert it. mediaType = 'text/plain'; mediaReader = new FileReader(); mediaReader.onloadend = function() { var blob = new Blob([mediaReader.result], {type: mediaType}); storage.prepareMediaToUpload(locator, blob, storageName, patternFiller); }; mediaReader.readAsText(image); Synthesis and biological evaluation of new [6,7-7a,9a-dihydro-8H-carbazol-8-yl]dibenzo[a,j]carbazoles.
